Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The abilities gained in the humanities and arts are always refined and applicable to a variety of fields requiring both solo and collaborative work. Academic fields known as the humanities focus on many facets of human civilization and culture. The study of how individuals interpret and record their experiences might be summed up as the humanities. Since the beginning of time, humans have recorded and understood our world through the use of philosophy, literature, religion, art, music, history, and language. These forms of expression are now included among the topics that are customarily studied in the humanities. We might feel a sense of connection to both our predecessors and contemporary people when we are aware of these archives of human experience.
