Law

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The legal profession is one that relies heavily on an understanding of the law and its applications. These 'vocations' together constitute a group of people who are licensed to practice law in specific countries. These people's learned profession is to examine, support, preserve, and implement the set of regulations established by the state. This might be carried out either inside the legal system (as a litigator) or outside of it (as a consultant or legal advisor). A qualified individual who works at a law office, corporation, governmental agency, or other establishment and carries out specific delegated substantive legal tasks such as litigating, arbitrating, negotiating, conciliating, and moderating matters for a party that has arisen between two parties is known as a lawyer. Since these situations can mainly be classified as civil or criminal, attorneys typically handle civil cases or criminal cases. Additionally, practicing attorneys can focus on the following areas of law: criminal law, contract law, labor law, company law, tort law, property law, tax law, trust law, family law, personal law, and so forth.
